Mary’s Story

Mary was 16 years old when she was married off. She dropped out of school to live with the ‘husband’. One day, she visited a relative in Kakamega. One of her cousins, Jane, who was a student and a member of 160 Girls Justice Clubs, became curious about the state of her cousin Mary. Upon further discussion with her cousin, Jane discovered that her cousin had been married for over four months. Jane spoke to Mary’s family about the matter. She used all the skills she had gained through the Justice Club program to convince the family to consider taking Jane back to school. At the end of the two weeks, Mary and the parents were convinced that Jane was right and that the marriage was against the law and had exposed Mary to a bleak future. Mary never went back to the ‘husband.’ Instead, she joined another school in Kakamega, where she continued with her education. Jane shared: ‘When you gain knowledge, you use it to change lives around you, you don’t keep it to yourself.’ Mary shared: ‘I was headed for the dark, I didn’t know what to do, Jane saved my life and my future’. Note: None of the names in this story are real.

Who are the Perpetrators of Sexual Violence?

Perpetrators of sexual violence are rarely strangers to their survivors. They are often relatives or other adults who are close to the survivor. This can include fathers, grandfathers, uncles, neighbours, teachers, or any other adults who are present in a child’s life. Other common perpetrators of sexual violence are neighbours, friends and classmates. They can also be complete strangers who target women and girls who appear vulnerable to them.

Why do Perpetrators Rape?

In many societies around the world, men have assumed positions of power and dominance over women. A society in which men control the government and the social structure is called a patriarchy. Women and girls are sometimes treated unfairly by the men in power, just because of their gender. The fight against the patriarchy is led by feminists. Feminists believe that women and men (and girls and boys) should have equal rights and opportunities. When it is culturally accepted that women and girls should obey men at all times, this allows men to abuse and assault women and girls with impunity. When a perpetrator is able to commit sexual crimes with impunity, it means that the legal and justice systems do not punish them for their actions. This establishes a culture of rape, in which people in a society believe that rape and sexual assault are inevitable, meaning they will happen no matter what. However, this does not have to be the case.
Rape is Abuse of Power
Men in positions of power (fathers, teachers, religious leaders, etc.) sometimes take advantage of their power and influence in their communities. It is important to remember that rape is about violence and the abuse of power by a person. It is not about love. They choose to abuse women and girls because they might think that they will be able to get away with it, and that they will not be punished for their actions. Survivors might feel like they have to go along with it so that they are not further harmed or their families are not put at risk. In the case of teachers or professors who abuse their students, the students feel like they have no choice but to remain silent about their assaults, because they fear that their grades will be affected.

The Cycle of Abuse
Perpetrators sometimes choose to harm others because they were harmed by someone in their life. They have been traumatized, and therefore they are conditioned to make others suffer through the same trauma. To make sure that perpetrators do not grow up to harm others, it is important to prevent them from being harmed in the first place. This can stop the cycle of abuse and stop the transmission of intergenerational trauma – traumatic experiences that are passed down from one generation to another.

COMMUNITY CORNER
This week we asked the Justice Club leaders:
After learning about why perpetrators rape, how would you explain the term ‘rape culture’?

FastSun from Kakamega said:
“PEOPLE BELIEVE RAPE IS inevitable.”

Amazing Star from Nairobi said:
“Rape culture is when men can abuse people because they’ve forced them to think they must be obedient. Society in which men control government and social structures. Women and girls are treated unfair by men in power.”

Mega Giraffe from Mombasa said:
“Rape culture is not good, I am saying this because it can bring harm or sickness to our girls life.”

Smart Rainbow from Nairobi said:
“It's a sociological concept for a setting in which rape is pervasive and normalised due to societal attitudes about gender and sensuality.”
